Different Aspects of Identity

Identity means who you are. It can include your name, your family, your friends, your hobbies, and even the things you like to learn. Everyone has a unique identity made up of many parts.

Remember: Your identity makes you special and different from everyone else!

Create a colorful collage that shows how your family influences you! Use drawings, photos, or magazine cutouts to include your favorite family foods, traditions, hobbies, and the special things your family teaches you. Share your collage with the class and explain each piece!

These questions can help you with your task!

What is your favorite holiday tradition with your family?

Which family member teaches you something new? What is it?

What is a special meal that you love eating with your family?

What hobbies do you share with your family?

What is a kind thing your family does that you like to do too?

The Iceberg

There are parts of who we are that we show to our family, our friends and others but there are also parts that only we know.

Write everything you show on the visible part of the iceberg and the parts only you know on the ice that is underwater.

You can draw your own iceberg here
